

Financial Benefits of Using a Virtual Assistant

When you work with a virtual assistant, you only pay for the time she spends on your projects.

VAs are independent contractors, so you WON'T have to pay for:

- sick days
- vacation days
- health insurance
- dental coverage
- payroll taxes
- expenses or down time for employee training
- additional office space, equipment or software

A virtual assistant enhances the professionalism of your business and provides a flexible service. If you are looking for a cost effective way to attract more customers and grow your online business, working with professional VAs is an excellent option. The only sensible solution to growth is to multiply your manpower. A qualified virtual assistant can perform a wide array of tasks, from customer service and event planning to online, mobile and social media marketing. When working with a VA, you can keep your project on schedule without paying overtime.
